As the sea closed over the Titanic, Lady Cosmo Duff Gordon in Boat 1 remarked to her secretary Miss Francatelli, “There is your beautiful nightdress gone.”

A lot more than Miss Francatelli’s nightgown vanished that April night. Even more than the largest liner in the world, her cargo, and the lives of 1,502 people.

Never again would men fling a ship into an ice field, heedless of warnings, putting their whole trust in a few thousand tons of steel and rivets. From then on Atlantic liners took ice messages seriously, steered clear, or slowed down. Nobody believed in the “unsinkable ship.”

Nor would icebergs any longer prowl the seas untended. After the Titanic sank, the American and British governments established the International Ice Patrol, and today Coast Guard cutters shepherd errant icebergs that drift toward the steamer lanes. The winter lane itself was shifted further south, as an extra precaution.

And there were no more liners with only part-time wireless. Henceforth every passenger ship had a 24-hour radio watch. Never again could the world fall apart while a Cyril Evans lay sleeping off-duty only ten miles away.

It was also the last time a liner put to sea without enough lifeboats. The 46,328-ton Titanic sailed under hopelessly outdated safety regulations. An absurd formula determined lifeboat requirements: all British vessels over 10,000 tons must carry 16 lifeboats with a capacity of 5,500 cubic feet, plus enough rafts and floats for 75 percent of the capacity of the lifeboats.

For the Titanic this worked out at 9,625 cubic feet. This meant she had to carry boats for only 962 people. Actually, there were boats for 1,178—the White Star Line complained that nobody appreciated their thoughtfulness. Even so, this took care of only 52 percent of the 2,207 people on board, and only 30 percent of her total capacity. From then on the rules and formulas were simple indeed—lifeboats for everybody.

And it was the end of class distinction in filling the boats. The White Star Line always denied anything of the kind—and the investigators backed them up—but there’s overwhelming evidence that the steerage took a beating. Daniel Buckley kept from going into First Class … Olaus Abelsen released from the poop deck as the last boat pulled away … Steward Hart convoying two little groups of women topside, while hundreds were kept below … steerage passengers crawling along the crane from the well deck aft … others climbing vertical ladders to escape the well deck forward.

Then there were the people Colonel Gracie, [Charles] Lightoller and others saw surging up from below, just before the end. Until this moment Gracie was sure the women were all off—they were so hard to find when the last boats were loading. Now, he was appalled to see dozens of them suddenly appear. The statistics suggest who they were—the Titanic’s casualty list included four of 143 First Class women (three by choice) … 15 of 93 Second Class women … and 81 of 179 Third Class women.

Not to mention the children. Except for Lorraine Allison, all 29 First and Second Class children were saved, but only 23 out of 76 steerage children.

Neither the chance to be chivalrous nor the fruits of chivalry seemed to go with a Third Class passage.

Exercise 1: Context Clues

Read the passage above, paying special attention to the words in dark type. These are the Master Words you will study in this lesson. As you read, look for context clues in the sentences and paragraphs around each Master Word. Circle any words and phrases that give clues to the meaning of the Master Words.

9. Eliza told Carly that the rumors were …; she would never talk like that behind her friend’s back.

10. To protect free speech, the United States refused to sign an international treaty that would impose …(s) on the Internet.
Exercise 5: Shades of Meaning

The bold words in the chart below are Master Words. Beneath each is a synonym. Although their denotations (dictionary definitions) are nearly the same, the Master Word and its synonym have different shades of meaning, or connotations. Based on the context, decide whether a Master Word or its synonym would better complete each sentence. Use a dictionary if necessary.

7. Given that you and Gary don’t always get along, it is understandable that you might distrust him. But it is ... to blame him for all your problems.

8. The plot of the play is ... ; in fact, there is no action at all.

Exercise 6: Analogies

Determine the relationship between the first pair of words below. Then write the Master Word on the blank that would create a similar relationship with the second pair of words. The types of analogies used in this activity are synonyms, antonyms, part/whole, tool/occupation, and adjective/related noun. (See page 158 for a guide to analogy types.)

1. x-ray : doctor : : ................................................ : lawyer

2. recipe : baker : : ................................................ : chemist

3. cool-headed : astronaut : : ........................................ : knight

4. words : facts : : numbers : ........................................

5. honest : truthful : : ridiculous : ..................................

Write About It: Sea Travel Safety

The passage from A Night to Remember discusses many things that have changed in sea travel as a result of the Titanic disaster. Write a summary of these changes. Remember that a summary includes only key ideas and leaves out many details. Use at least five Master Words in your summary.
Unit Word Study

Classic Roots and Affixes (vis- , -ible)

The Master Word visage is composed of the Latin root vis- (also vid- ), which means “to see,” and the suffix -age, which, in this case, creates an abstract noun that means “appearance” or “face.” Use this information to complete the exercises.

Matching

Write the letter of the definition after the correct word on the left. Use a dictionary if necessary.

1. invisible
   - a. see in the mind
2. vision
   - b. make changes after looking at it again
3. visibility
   - c. recording of images
4. envision
   - d. someone able to imagine future possibilities
5. video
   - e. sight
6. vista
   - f. unable to be seen
7. visionary
   - g. distance one is able to see; being able to be seen
8. revise
   - h. expansive scene

The suffix -ible or -able added to a verb creates an adjective. For example drive + -able forms * drivable*, which is an adjective that means “able to be driven.” The suffix can also be added to certain nouns. Misery + the suffix -able becomes the adjective miserable.

Writing Definitions

Write the part of speech and a definition for each of the words below. Then use the word in a sentence. Use a dictionary if necessary. An example has been done for you.

visible (adj.) able to be seen.

The stop sign was clearly visible, so the driver had no reason not to stop.

1. searchable

2. reliable

3. impressionable

4. comfortable

5. edible
Idioms and Sayings

An idiom is an expression whose meaning is not immediately apparent from the denotation of the words that make it up. For example, a task that is a piece of cake is very easy to accomplish and something that costs an arm and a leg is very expensive. If you don’t know the meaning of an idiom or saying, you will have to use context clues. You can also refer to specialized idiom dictionaries or search the Internet for definitions.

Matching

Write the letter of the definition on the right that matches the idiom in bold type on the left.

1. The child lapped up the attention from her grandparents.
   a. to surpass; to be better than
   b. not completely normal
   c. situation in which avoiding one bad result leads to another bad result
   d. not be aware of actual events
   e. accept with great pleasure
   f. for real
   g. left a lasting memory
   h. very best
   i. reduce

2. Marie was determined to do her level best at the tryout.

3. Joe’s smartphone app put mine in the shade.

4. Many think Marissa is half a bubble off plumb because of her silly behavior.

5. Aki’s family had to pare down its expenses when her father lost his job.

6. Randy didn’t believe the special offer was on the level.

7. He got so deep into his role that he seemed to lose touch with reality.

8. Marko was in a double bind. If he told who was really responsible, he would be regarded as a squeal. If he didn’t, he himself would be falsely blamed.

9. Wearing two different shoes, Keiran made quite an impression on his new classmates.

Using Idioms

See if you can guess the meaning of the idioms below. Use each in a sentence. Check your work by looking up the meaning in a phrase and idiom dictionary or on the Internet.

1. Beat around the bush

   To be indirect in expression to mislead or to avoid harsh words.

   Randy beat around the bush. He didn’t want to hurt Marcia’s feelings by saying what he really meant.

2. Under the weather

   To feel ill.

   I don’t think I will be able to go to the movies tonight. I am feeling under the weather.

3. A chink in the armor

   A small problem that will lead to larger failure.

   He is a brilliant student, but overconfidence in his abilities may be a chink in his armor.
I. Read the passage below. Then answer questions 1–10.

The Unsinkable Molly Brown

Just over one hundred years ago, on April 14, 1912, Margaret (Molly) Brown was comfortably reading her book aboard a luxury ocean liner when something crashed through her window and she was thrown to the floor. The ship she was on, the Titanic, was supposed to be unsinkable, since it was made with double reinforced steel. Brown did not panic. Instead she gathered warm clothing, put on seven pairs of socks, and strapped on a life jacket. As a seasoned traveller, she was accustomed to handling misfortune. What she may not have expected, however, was the grim reality of people selfishly protecting themselves at the expense of others.

Brown was actually placed in a lifeboat—she did not go voluntarily. She would have been happy to continue helping others board the lifeboats, as she had been doing before being placed in the boat. Once in the boat, though, she had no choice but to stay as it was lowered into the freezing ocean water. The lifeboat left the Titanic with only 23 people onboard, even though it could hold 65. The 21 women on the lifeboat demanded that the boat be turned around to take on more passengers and were appalled when the quartermaster, who was also in the lifeboat, refused. He just wanted to follow the orders they were given, to row toward the light. They soon realized, however, that no light was visible.

Brown's prodigious optimism kept up the spirits of the other passengers in the lifeboat during their uncertainty about whether they would live or die. She also shared with them what she had brought, keeping only one pair of socks, giving someone a blanket, giving someone else a warm coat. When they were finally rescued by another ship, Brown worked continually to help other survivors. While some of the first class passengers were supercilious toward the steerage passengers, Brown took a provocative position for the day and convinced many of them to donate money to help the less fortunate. By the time the rescue ship reached New York, she had managed to raise $10,000.

What was it about Margaret Brown that made her refuse to forsake others? She might well have remembered her own upbringing and the years she spent in poverty before her husband, once a poor miner, made a fortune when he found a new vein of precious metal. Throughout her lifetime, she worked for women's rights and labor rights, and her commitment to these causes may have made her especially sensitive to the plight of the less fortunate aboard the Titanic. For her tireless efforts on behalf of women and the less fortunate, and for her determination and spirit, she earned a distinction that even the Titanic could not live up to: unsinkable.

Questions 1–3: Find the word most nearly opposite in meaning to the given word.

   - E supercilious – misfortune

continued
II. Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

The idea of my being aristocratic and well-bred, and your being afraid to go anywhere alone! I don’t know which is the most absurd. Well, I’ll go if I must, and do my best. You shall be commander of the expedition, and I’ll obey blindly, will that satisfy you?” said Jo, with a sudden change from perversity to lamblike submission.

“You’re a perfect cherub! Now put on all your best things, and I’ll tell you how to behave at each place, so that you will make a good impression. I want people to like you, and they would if you’d only try to be a little more agreeable.”

—from Little Women by Louisa May Alcott

11. What word is most similar to the word absurd?

   A. quiet
   B. elusive
   C. improper
   D. ridiculous

12. Which dictionary definition below best matches the use of the word impression in the passage?

   A. n. a figure created with pressure
   B. n. the first effect made by someone
   C. n. an imitation of a well-known figure
   D. n. all the copies of a book made in the same print run

13. Which phrase from the passage best helps the reader understand the meaning of the word impression?

   A. how to behave
   B. I want people to like you
   C. if you’d only try
   D. I’ll tell you

III. Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Though it seemed ...?..., the ...?... did point to someone other than Amy leaving the refrigerator open. The only other possible suspect, though, was a dog. Could a dog really open a refrigerator door?

14. Which pair of words best completes the blanks in the passage?

   A. sinister ... template
   B. sinister ... evidence
   C. absurd ... distinction
   D. absurd ... evidence

15. Which two words or phases from the passage best help the reader answer question 14?

   A. open, door
   B. suspect, dog
   C. refrigerator, open
   D. seemed, possible
IV. Read the passage below and answer the question that follows.

...I had long tasks every day to do with Mr. Mell; but I did them, there being no Mr. and Miss Murdstone here, and got through them without disgrace. Before, and after them, I walked about—supervised, as I have mentioned, by the man with the wooden leg.

—from David Copperfield by Charles Dickens

16. The word supervised comes from a Latin root meaning “see” and a prefix meaning “over.” Based on this information and the text, what is the meaning of supervised?

- A observed
- B unseen
- X seen before
- D watched over

V. Informative Reporting on Research: What Caused the Great Train Wreck of 1918?

In the same decade that the Titanic sank, a terrible train wreck occurred in Nashville when two passenger trains collided. It has become known as the Great Train Wreck of 1918. Use at least three sources, both print and digital, and write a brief report describing the accident, identifying its causes, and noting the changes in railroad transportation that resulted from the wreck. Organize your report logically and use transitions linking the various sections. The following words from Unit 1 may be especially helpful in your report. Use as many of them as you can.

Collaborating Through the Writing Process

Work in small groups. Develop a list of 5–8 criteria you think a strong report should have, such as clear organization, plenty of supporting details, and good use of sources. Then share your first drafts of your report on the Great Train Wreck of 1918 with your group members and use the criteria to evaluate one another’s drafts. Review the comments about your report and revise your essay accordingly. When you are satisfied with your revision, edit your report for conventions. Ask a group member to look over your editing to see if you have missed anything, and make any necessary changes.
